

Dear Sirs: I'm requesting help in the matter of XO Communications. The manner in which they reported the company's standings was not only misleading to the average investor like myself, but was a flat out lie to get people's money. Can any company just decide to restructure and wipe out the shareholders investment? Any attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Thank You,
Colin Garris